Risk and Reward Profile

The synthetic risk/reward indicator shows the potential risk and reward for an investment in the fund. The synthetic indicator is based on the fluctuation in the fund's value over the past five years. In case the fund has insufficient history a comparison index is used to complete the calculation. Didner & Gerge Small & Microcap belongs to category 5. This means that the fund is subject to higher risk in respect of rises and falls in value. Category 1 does not mean that the fund is a risk-free investment. The fund may over time shift both to the right and to the left side of the scale. Since the synthetic indicator is based on historical data, it is not a guarantee for future risk or reward. Didner & Gerge Small & Microcap invests in listed companies which generally are characterized by high risk, but also by potential high return. The synthetic indicator mainly reflects the volatility of the equities the fund is invested in.

The following risks are considered important but are not reflected in the risk indicator:

Liquidity risk. This is the risk of it not being possible to sell a security at a given time without a significant price reduction. This risk is greater for securities with low turnover. Equities that are traded on a regulated market normally have good liquidity even during periods of volatility. The fund invests a large part of its assets in small or very small companies, which may mean that the fund has difficulty selling holdings at limited cost, and payment of redemption proceeds to unitholders may need to be delayed in the event of large outflows.

Operational risk. This is the risk of the fund's value being affected negatively by failures in internal processes and controls related to the funds' trading, valuation and day-to-day operations.
